

Our SUCCESS STORIES

Gender Mainstreaming and Popularization of Climate Change Strategies.

SOPHIA DONALD

"We have established a platform for women activists to promote climate change awareness in Ukerewe. The platform will focus on various areas, including raising awareness about climate change and its impact on women, developing gender-responsive climate change adaptation strategies, and empowering women to cope with the effects of climate change".

TRADITIONAL DANCING GROUP

As a traditional dance group, we have gained understanding in climate change and gender issues. We utilize our cultural dances to compose poetry carrying messages on environmental conservation, aiming to mitigate climate change effects. Through performances held in various locations across Tanzania, we engage with communities to raise awareness and promote the importance of preserving the environment.

MAMA MARIETHA

"We agreed to plant four trees for each person who participated in our discussions. Each participant committed to planting these trees at their home, symbolizing a personal dedication to environmental care and addressing climate change. Many of us have chosen fruit-bearing trees or those providing shade; for instance, I opted for shade trees. We remind and support each other in these efforts whenever we meet, as we collectively act as guardians for one another in this initiative".

VENERANDA KAMBARANGWE

"I was touched by the points raised in the GCCTC-organized debate on climate change. Since I produce charcoal using wood dust as an alternative energy source, I provided an opportunity for fellow women to learn from me about the charcoal-making process. Some of them genuinely approached me, and I guided them on the procedure".
